

The Comical Cosmos

Xenia Greniuk
Comic Artist

Mascots That Could Have Been (Pt. 2):

The Coe Nutcrackers

The Kohawk has been Coe's mascot for 94 years. Before its selection, a number of different mascots were suggested in a school-wide naming competition. Among these were the Squirrels and the Nutcrackers.

The Coe Nutcrackers, like their local squirrel brothers, are known for their excessive energy and consumption of carbohydrates. On the field, however...

they put a real (ro)dent in the competition!

Correction from The Cosmos

In last week's edition of The Cosmos, the opinion article run on page seven had a small error. The sentence ending the first paragraph should have read: "...why do these presidents feel it appropriate to have their God be the one representing all these people?"

The article was meant to be a reflection on presidents bringing their personal beliefs into addresses to the nation. The exclusion of the word "their" unintentionally insinuates a call for the exclusion of all religious references from presidential addresses, which is NOT the case.

We apologize for any misunderstanding and hope no one was hurt by the error.

The Weekly Sudoku

Brought to you by The Cosmos.

Good luck!

5			2	7
6							2
	1				9
		6				1	4
					5
	7	4	9	2		5
4							1	9
		1			3			8
			8	2		3		